Dear Sir:

I'm writing you because you seem to be one of the few Americans who still wishes to learn the truth about Lee Harvey Oswalds guilt or innocence.

I believe Oswald took this evidence right to the grave with him. In all the books and articles printed about this case I have never read anything about the following.

Since a few hours after his arrest it has always been my belief that his shoulder should have been examined for scuffing.

We put recoil pads on shotguns but not on rifles due to the accuracy of weapon desired.

If Oswald fired three shots from a bolt action rifle without benefit of shoulder pad there should be evidence of at least slight bruise or scuffing on his right shoulder as different from the flesh on his left shoulder. This should be the case since he wore light clothing.

If the body could be exhumed this condition of the skin may still bear this theory since he died about 48 hours after the alleged firing of the weapon. If I see the phrase "the truth will out," I will know my efforts have been to some use to his family.
